Close communications between home study students and their local public schools are encouraged to promote the benefits of joint participation.

Background:

Brattleboro Union High School District #6 recognizes that some families believe that home schooling is the best education format for their children. Brattleboro Union High School District #6 believes that home study and fully enrolled students can benefit from participating together in school activities and programs and strives to provide educational services in ways, which are consistent with the needs of both fully enrolled students and home study students.

General Guidelines For Home Study Student Participation

2. The teacher/guidance counselor/principal will discuss alternative ways to demonstrate achievement with the parents of home study students. Final determination of a student's qualifications to enroll in a course requiring prerequisites will be made by the teacher/guidance counselor/principal.
4. Students may not enroll for single subjects which are taught as part of integrated courses—those courses that cover two or more subjects and are taught by a single individual or team—but may seek admission to the integrated course.
5. Participation in athletic and other extra-curricular programs and activities will be in compliance with the school's eligibility requirements as well as with the current guidelines adopted by the Vermont Principals Association.

- d. first priority given to fully enrolled students (in co-curricular activities only; this option may not be applied to admissions to academic programs)
- e. other

When choices for admission to either academic or co-curricular programs must be made because of limited space, the Brattleboro Union High School District #6 will, within thirty (30) days of the denial, notify the Home Study Consultant at the Agency of Education on a form provided by the Agency. The District shall provide other information on the integration of home study students into the public school as requested by the Secretary.
